Whale watchers set sail off the coast of Danvers

Store Reporter Debi Bulmer

Here on Massachusetts' North Shore in Danvers, there is an abundance of activities to wile away a warm summer's night. Below are a few of the ways that employees at K mart 3098 spend their summer relaxing after work.

Rockport - It has small unique shops and quaint old buildings overlooking the ocean. After window shopping, a picnic of wine, cheese and soft fresh bread sitting under a warm-star studded sky is a perfect end to a maybe not so perfect day.

Salem Willows - A small amusement park with a grassy tree covered park, beaches, arcade, flying horses, and Chinese and seafoods. The Willows is also known for some of the best and varied types of popcorn and salt water taffy on the North Shore. On Tuesday nights there are concerts at the shell, weather permitting.

Boat cruises - We are lucky here because not only do we have cruises around Salem Harbor during the day and whale watches early Sunday mornings, but there are also evening cruises around Salem Harbor for those adventurous souls. Or you can drive into Boston and take a cruise around Boston Harbor. There is usually a band and the breeze off the water is an added bonus.

Cookouts - A Fourth of July tradition becomes a delightful change when done during a warm summer night. When it gets dark we either make a fire or get out the Coleman lantern and tell ghost stories. (That should give you a little chill). For an added treat, find legends and stories from the area in which you live.

Block parties - These are not exactly a "spur-of-the-moment" thing, but it's a great way for a large group of people to get together for some fun. If everyone pitches in, the work is minimal as is the expense. You'd be surprised what a stereo and some records can do. It's a way to get to see people on your street and meet people that you don't already know.

How about going to a Red Sox game, or a walk at Old Orchard Beach, going to a city league baseball or softball game? What about a sort of family circle where everyone learns to do one thing (men and women alike) such as embroidery, tie flying or sundae making. There are many inexpensive and just plain fun things that you can do if you just use a little imagination.
